

Black lives matter

As a school, St Mary's applauds and supports the efforts of the Black Lives Matter movement to bring about lasting change.

The strength of feeling across the world has created an energy and appetite for change that cannot be wasted.

St Mary's, as an educational establishment, is committed to playing its part in the efforts to eradicate racism. Education can play a pivotal role in tackling discrimination in society. It is through education that we can start to build a truly inclusive society. It is through education that we can change minds and challenge prejudice.

Educators have a unique and vital role to play in this work and are committed to doing so as part of a societal-wide approach. From the overarching ethos of our school to the detail of the curriculum, our educational leadership has the power to help bring about the change we need to see.

As a school, we are committed to identifying and resolving issues of inequality within our own structures and working, together with our local community, for a brighter future that we can share together.

"In God's eyes, we're all the same." (Luke 18:16)
